Join like-minded investigators interested in the human urobiome! The goal of the UROBIOME 2025 conference is simple: to advance human urobiome science. We are so glad you are a part of the excitement.

During this conference, we have a unique opportunity to educate each other, share best practices, coalesce around a set of core principles for human urobiome research, and promote scientific practices that facilitate urobiome investigators' making the most of the research resources available to us. Conference attendees are diverse, including internationally known experts in microbiome sciences, trainees, and interested lay individuals.

Participants in prior UROBIOME conferences have contributed a consensus statement published in 2021 (https://doi.org/10.1128/mSystems.01371-20).

During UROBIOME 2025, we will think about using our knowledge and skills to find better ways to prevent, diagnose, and treat conditions associated with unhealthy urobiomes. There are many foundational questions still to be asked:

- What are the features of healthy urobiomes?
- How do unhealthy urobiomes contribute to clinical problems?
- Can we prevent the development of unhealthy urobiomes?
- How do we get unhealthy urobiomes back to a healthy state?

We hope you will meet new people, expose yourself to new ideas and ways of thinking, engage with your colleagues, share your expertise and talents freely, establish new collaborations, and be full of new ideas at the end of the day.

We invite you to participate in this innovative conference with a room full of OPEN MINDS.

Thank you,

Linda Brubaker, MD
